

Pre-OT Quick Facts

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA
Pre-Health Advising Office

You should prepare for a career as an Occupational Therapist by building credentials in scholarship, leadership, humanitarian/community service, and shadowing in the various settings of the profession. OT schools greatly value shadowing experience and prefer for you to have a significant amount of shadowing experiences in a variety of OT settings. This helps to ensure that you have an appreciation for the vast scope of the profession. There is no “best” major for pre-OT students. Instead, you are encouraged to pursue a major you are genuinely interested in as that will help you excel. Remember to consult a pre-health advisor about your individual plan!

❖ What is OT? How does it differ from PT?

The fields of occupational therapy and physical therapy are often confused. While both roles provide essential hands-on rehabilitative work to help clients perform everyday tasks as independently as possible, each field takes a distinct approach in helping people get back to their day to day lives. The main difference is that OT focuses on improving a client’s ability to perform activities of daily living (ADL), and PT focuses on improving a client’s ability to perform movement of the human body. OTs tend to have a more holistic perspective and focus on adapting the environment to fit the person.

OTCAS (Occupational Therapy Centralized Application Service)

To apply to most OT programs, you will utilize the OTCAS application service. Official transcripts, GRE scores, a personal statement, and letters of recommendation are all submitted to OTCAS. Two out of the three OT programs in Georgia use this application service; only Augusta University requires students apply directly through their institution. OTCAS opens each year in July, but programs differ in terms of their application deadlines. Most deadlines are in the fall for a summer start; however, students are generally encouraged to apply well before the deadline since many institutions participate in rolling admissions. Augusta does NOT use OTCAS, you will apply from their program website. Their application opens July 1.

❖ Do grade trends matter?

If you wish to enter an OT program (MSOT or OTD), you will need strong science and overall GPAs as admission is competitive. Admissions committees look not only at raw numbers, but also at grade trends on your transcript—so all is not lost if you stumble in your first semester or two, but then show substantial improvement each subsequent year. However, they will also notice negative trends such as if you are consistently withdrawing from or performing poorly in hard sciences or are completing courses away from your home institution.

GRE

Most OT schools require that applicants take the Graduate Record Examination (GRE). The GRE consists of three sections: Quantitative, Verbal, and Essay section. There are no specific courses that you need to take prior to the GRE, but you should plan to dedicate roughly six to eight weeks to exam preparation. While you can opt for a commercial prep course for the GRE, self-study is often sufficient. Generally, it is recommended for you to take the GRE January-May as you head into the application cycle. The GRE is offered via University Testing Services on a regular basis. GRE scores are good for 5 years.

Shadowing, Volunteering, & Research

Most OT programs require that you have experience observing or shadowing occupational therapists in action. Shadowing requirements for admissions can vary among schools. It is recommended for a competitive application that students strive for at least a total of 100 hours and in 3-4 different settings including at least one inpatient and one outpatient experience. Diversity of shadowing experiences is immensely important. You need to log your hours in Excel or a downloaded template. Have your logs signed off on by the OT that you shadow.

Extracurricular activities, such as clubs and volunteering, are a large portion of the application that should not be neglected. OT schools are looking for students who not only demonstrate that they can manage rigorous courses while staying busy, but also those who are compassionate, enjoy working with people, and are dedicated to serving the community. You should keep in mind that depth of commitment and leadership experience are also considered. As a result, it is best to focus on strong engagement in few activities rather than to spread yourself too thin or compromise academic performance.

In addition, OTs regularly work with individuals who are living with disabilities, so it is important that you demonstrate an active interest in working with this population either through sustained volunteering or life experiences. Extra Special People (ESP), Special Olympics, Butterfly Dreams Farm, Athens Inclusive Recreation and Sports (AIRS), and Camp Twin Lakes are a few local organizations at which you can consider volunteering. UGA also has a Disabilities Certificate you may be interested in exploring with your primary advisor.

Research is not a requirement though if you have an interest in research it can help to diversify your experiences. Diversity of experiences is extremely important when it comes to competitive applications. You should not only be doing clinical oriented activities but engage in endeavors that you really care about. Research is just an example of another way to diversify your experiences based on interest.

Letters of Evaluation

Most OT schools require three letters of evaluation. Requirements can vary between schools, and it is the student's responsibility to ensure that they have collected the correct letters for their program of interest. Generally, programs expect students to provide one letter from a licensed OT, one from a faculty member, and one other of the student's choosing. This can come from another OT, a research mentor, volunteer coordinator, employer, etc. Students should select what they believe will be the most compelling letter.
